Assessing the most valuable technology for an organization is becoming a growing challenge for business professionals confronted with an expanding array of options. This 2007 book is an A-Z compendium of technological terms written for the non-technical executive, allowing quick identification of what the term is and why it is significant. This is more than a dictionary - it is a concise review of the most important aspects of information technology from a business perspective: the major advantages, disadvantages and business value propositions of each term are discussed, as well as sources for further reading, and cross-referencing with other terms where applicable. The essential elements of each concept are covered in a succinct manner so the reader can quickly obtain the required knowledge without wading through exhaustive descriptions. With over 200 terms, this is a valuable reference for non- and semi-technical managers, executives and graduate students in business and technology management.

The author explains what you need to know to start a Web Analytics and testing program, and how you can use what you learn to improve site design, maximize Web site Return on Investment (ROI), and make your site a place your site visitors will want to use over and over again.

This book covers and revises subjects, texts, and checklists contained in my other four books, but with the goal that each of you creates an integrated management system (IMS). That is, that you optimally implement and employ applicable ISO International Standards without the redundancies and self-serving busy work that inevitably comes from separate free-standing standards. This book also highlights parts of my first book on ethics and corporate responsibility management. It reintroduces MVO 8000 as an essential pillar in the construction of an integrated management system.

This book is about what I call " Fix it or lose it Management". I wrote it to help you do your own turnaround inside your organization, before someone else does it for you – or your organization goes under completely. This book is a compendium of carefully selected good ideas from good books, plus my own experience in nearly 20 years as a management consultant and the 27 years of Military service that preceded it. Like my last book, I wrote it so that you could have straightforward, no-nonsense material, ready to implement. CEOs and other responsible people in leadership positions don't always have time to do their own research. Instead, they throw themselves on the mercy of contractors, who think in terms of yearly contracts. You can do the job better.

A detailed listing for management personnel of 2,300 business and business-related subjects, with a record of periodicals, organizations, bureaus, directories, bibliographies, and other sources concerned with each topic.
